PREFACE.

The publication of this little Annual was only decided on a week ago. There has, therefore, been little time to do justice to it. The attempt, however, will doubtless be appreciated, and if so, we hope next Season to publish an Annual which will give fuller details, and afford every information regarding "The Association Game."

FOOT-BALL.

Foot-Ball is one of the very oldest, if not the oldest, of our athletic games. It requires no great stretch of imagination to picture its commencement in the playful scuffle to kick a piece of wood or a stone, by our tattooed progenitors, before the Christian era. This sport was doubtless gradually brought into the general form it possessed in the middle of the present century. At that time there were many modes prevalent in England, while in Scotland it seems to have almost died out. Here and there it was occasionally practised, but throughout the country generally, it seems to have been confined to "the schule green," where the "gud Scotch blue bonnet" was artfully rolled into a ball, and duly kicked by the sport-loving "scholars." The modern game, we may say, belongs to England, and more particularly that mode or style known as "The Association Game."
It was but natural that a game such as Football should, in course of time, assume different styles in different places. Especially was this the case when communication throughout the country was difficult, slow, and rare. Each district consciously and unconsciously, drifted into some peculiarity in the mode of play, and this in time became confirmed and developed, and latterly became characteristic of the district. Thus, in the middle of the present century, we find various styles of play in fashion, and rules enforcing in one place, what was forbidden in another. This state of matters could not long continue when railways had opened up the easy, rapid and constant communication of the present day; and hence, in 1863, a meeting of representatives belonging to various clubs, was held in London, and what is now known as "The Association," was formed.

Since 1863 there have been various alterations made in the Rules of the Association Game, and as time goes on, there will, no doubt, be a further development. Some have objected to alterations, fearing the confusion that attends such. It should, however, be remembered, that while the confusion is temporary, the benefit is lasting; and that we can make no progress whatever, without paying some penalty or other for it. The alterations hitherto made in these rules, have shown judicious care on the part of the Association, and no desire for mere innovation. The rules have been formed with the view of rendering the game truly sportful, and to afford for the young and manful, a legitimate and healthy exercise.

There is now-a-days so much attention directed to the training of the intellect, that the importance of the proper training of the body is apt to be overlooked. It has become the fashion, also, in some circles, to affect a contempt for anything in the form of physical exercise, and to glory in quoting mystic verses from Tennyson, or equally mysterious sentences from Darwin and Arnold. Now, this spirit if it became general, would prove ruinous to the country. True education ought to embrace the development of body as well as of mind, and the ideal man ought to be the healthful (which in its old form is the "hale," and in its wide sense, the "whole," ) man.

The establishment of an Association therefore, for the promotion and proper regulation of a healthy physical exercise, is, in this view, a most important institution, and, well worked, cannot fail to prove conducive to the best interests of our country. It affords to young men especially, a legitimate sphere for the exuberance of animal spirits natural to them, and thus doubtless draws many of them from other spheres, perhaps very inviting, but nevertheless debasing alike to mind and body.

The duty then of the Association, is to develop this game, and to render it, as a game, as perfect as possible; to promote it, so that it may become established throughout the length and breadth of the land; to preserve it from all low associations, from everything that has the least degree of brutality, viciousness, or meanness in its nature; and to make everything in the game and in the Association, attractive, interesting, and pleasing. By doing this, the Associations of England and of Scotland, will do something to maintain the superiority of British nerve and muscle; to promote the healthful conditions of town and country alike, and to produce in the inhabitants of our native land, a bold, athletic, and manly race.
LAWS OF THE GAME.

1. The limits of the ground shall be: maximum length, 200 yards; minimum length, 100 yards; maximum breadth, 100 yards; minimum breadth, 50 yards. The length and breadth shall be marked off with flags; and the goals shall be upright posts, 8 yards apart, with a tape or bar across them, 8 feet from the ground.

2. The winners of the toss shall have the option of kick-off or choice of goals. The game shall be commenced by a place-kick from the centre of the ground; the other side shall not approach within ten yards of the ball until it is kicked off, nor shall any player on either side pass the centre of the ground in the direction of his opponents’ goal until the ball is kicked off.

3. Ends shall only be changed at half-time. After a goal is won, the losing side shall kick-off, but after the change of ends at half-time, the ball shall be kicked off by the opposite side from that which originally did so; and always as provided in Law 2.
4. A goal shall be won when the ball passes between the goal-posts under the tape or bar, not being thrown, knocked on nor carried. The ball hitting the goal, or boundary posts, or goal bar, or tape, and rebounding into play, is considered in play.

5. When the ball is in touch a player of the opposite side to that which has kicked it out, shall throw it from the point on the boundary-line where it left the ground in a direction at right angles with the boundary-line, at least six yards, and it shall not be in play until it has touched the ground, and the player throwing it in shall not play it until it has been played by another player.

6. When a player kicks the ball, any one of the same side who at such moment of kicking is nearer to the opponents' goal-line is out of play, and may not touch the ball himself, nor in any way whatever prevent any other player from doing so until the ball has been played, unless there are at least three of his opponents nearer their own goal-line; but no player is out of play when the ball is kicked from the goal-line.

7. When the ball is kicked behind the goal-line by one of the opposite side, it shall be kicked off by one of the players behind whose goal-line it went, within six yards of the nearest goal-post; but if kicked behind by any one of the side whose goal-line it is, a player of the opposite side shall kick it from within one yard of the nearest corner flag-post. In either case no other player shall be allowed within six yards of the ball until it is kicked off.

8. No player shall carry or knock on the ball, and handling the ball, under any pretence whatever, shall be prohibited, except in the case of the goal-keeper, who shall be allowed to use his hands in defence of his goal, either by knocking on or throwing, but shall not carry the ball. The goal-keeper may be changed during the game, but not more than one player shall act as goal-keeper at the same time, and no second player shall step in and act during any period in which the regular goal keeper may have vacated his position.

9. Neither tripping nor hacking shall be allowed, and no player shall use his hands to hold or push his adversary nor charge him from behind.

10. No player shall wear any nails, excepting such as have their heads driven in flush with the leather, nor iron plates or gutta-percha, on the soles or heels of his boots.
11. In the event of any infringement of Rules 6, 8 or 9, a free kick shall be forfeited to the opposite side from the spot where the infringement took place.

12. In no case shall a goal be scored from any free kick, nor shall the ball be again played by the kicker until it has been played by another player. The kick-off and corner-flag kick shall be free kicks within the meaning of this rule.

13. That in the event of any supposed infringement of Rules 6, 8, 9 or 10, the ball be in play until the decision of the Umpire on his being appealed to, shall have been given.

DEFINITION OF TERMS.

A Place Kick is a kick at the ball while it is on the ground, in any position in which the kicker may choose to place it.

Hacking is kicking an adversary intentionally.

Tripping is throwing an adversary by the use of the legs.

Knocking on is when a player strikes or propels the ball with his hands or arms.

Holding includes the obstruction of a player by the hand or any part of the arm below the elbow.
Touch is that part of the field, on either side of the ground, which is beyond the line of flags.

A Free Kick is a kick at the ball in any way the kicker pleases, when it is lying on the ground; none of the kicker's opponents being allowed within six yards of the ball, but in no case can a player be forced to stand behind his own goal-line.

Handling is understood to be playing the ball with the hand or arm.

Previous to the year 1873, the Association Game of Football was little known in Scotland. It was first introduced by the now famous and celebrated Queen’s Park Club, of Glasgow, in 1867. By its steady perseverance and strict adherence to the Association Code of Rules, other clubs were one by one induced to give their support to the "innovator," and although they had to struggle hard to maintain the rules against their then more powerful, and popular rivals, of the Rugby code, yet their efforts were attended with unlooked-for success.

Indeed, by their growing success, a number of delegates from the various clubs supporting the Association Rules, met in Dewar's Temperance Hotel, Bridge Street, Glasgow, in the month of March, 1873, Mr. Gardner, of the Queen's Park, presiding, when the Scottish Football Association was duly constituted, and rules drawn up. The Committee appointed, at once set energetically to work, and in order to develop and popularise the game in Scotland, voluntary subscriptions were got from the various clubs comprising the Association, to raise the handsome Challenge Cup which is now competed for annually by all the Clubs in the Association. These cup competitions have met very successfully the views of the Committee in spreading and improving the game in Scotland.

Great success has attended the Association since its inauguration, being supported now by some 50 clubs, spread all over the country, whilst it only numbered 16 at the end of its first year. The matches played under the arrangement of the Association has resulted very satisfactory for Scotland and Glasgow.

The two International Matches of 1874 and 1875, England v. Scotland, played respectively in Glasgow and London, gave great satisfaction, the results being the first match won by Scotland, two goals to one, while the latter was drawn, each side securing two goals. The two engagements, Sheffield Association v. Glasgow, also resulted in favour of the Scotch. The first match played on Brammel Lane, Sheffield, 1874, and according to the Sheffield rules, being drawn, each team getting two goals; whilst the second played at Glasgow in February of this year, resulted in a win for Glasgow, by two goals to none. Previous to the institution of the Association, a couple of International Matches had come off between England and Scotland, under the management of the Queen’s Park Club, and played respectively at Partick and London, in 1872 and 1873, the first ending in a draw, no goals being secured by either side, while the latter was won by England, playing 4 goals to 2.

Too great praise cannot be accorded to the Queen’s Park Club for their pluck and energy on these occasions, the team for the first match being all Queen’s Park men, while there were no less than eight of their men in the second. Judging from the success that has attended the Association since its formation, we anticipate every success in the season which has just begun.
